MIDDLE AMERICA — GUATEMALA — MAYA

0203 Model of Stela - Maya - Piedras Negras, Guatemala

The original in limestone, now in the University Museum, stands 10' 4" and weighs about four tons. The Model is a close replica at the scale of 1 inch to 1 foot.

One of the finest of all known Mayan monuments, the scene portrays a vanquished group before a seated figure, probably the ruler of Piedras Negras, who is flanked by standing warriors. The chief of the conquered people crouches at the base of the throne in the pose of a supplicant.

Remarkable for artistic freedom, naturalism, a definite feeling for composition and perspective, sculpture such as this was produced with stone tools and abrasives such as sand.

Like all such monuments, it is inscribed with the Mayan hieroglyphs which give, in addition to other information, still undecipherable, the date of erection.

Correlation with our calendar has not yet been determined definitely, but the probable date of this stela is September 15th of either A. D. 535 or 795.
